

Locke Lord Bissell & Liddell LLP
300 South Grand Avenue, Eighth Floor
Los Angeles, CA 90071-3119

LOCKE LORD BISSELL & LIDDELL LLP

John M. Hochhausler (SBN: 143801)

jhochhausler@lockelord.com

Cory A. Baskin (SBN: 240517)

cbaskin@lockelord.com

300 South Grand Avenue, Eighth Floor

Los Angeles, California 90071-3119

Telephone: 213.485.1500

Facsimile: 213.431.1500

Thomas J. Cunningham (pro hac vice application pending)

tcunningham@lockelord.com

Simon Fleischmann (pro hac vice application pending)

sfleischmann@lockelord.com

111 South Wacker Drive

Chicago, Illinois 60606-4410

Telephone: 312-443-0462

Facsimile: 312-896-6471

Attorneys for Defendant

HOMEcomings FINANCIAL, LLC

f/k/a HOMEcomings FINANCIAL

NETWORK, INC.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

DOUG PEARSON, an individual, on behalf of himself, and on behalf of all persons similarly situated,

Plaintiff,

vs.

HOMEcomings FINANCIAL LLC,
formerly known as HOMEcomings
FINANCIAL NETWORK, INC.; and
DOES 1 through 100, Inclusive,

Defendants.

) CASE NO. 08 CV 0515 H NLS

)

) MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND ) AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF ) DEFENDANT’S MOTION TO DISMISS

)

) [Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 12 (b)(6)]

)

) Date: June 16, 2008

) Time: 10:30 a.m.

) Place: Courtroom 13

)

) Hon. Marilyn L. Huff

)

)

)

Defendant Homecomings Financial, LLC f/k/a Homecomings Financial Network, Inc.

(“Homecomings”) submits the following memorandum of points and authorities in support of its

1 Motion to Dismiss pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) (“Motion”), and states as 2 follows:

3 INTRODUCTION

4 Plaintiff’s Complaint should be dismissed for failure to state a claim. Plaintiff has 5 sued Homecomings, on behalf of himself and all others similarly situated, alleging that 6 Homecomings pursues a “systematic and uniform” practice of fraudulently deceiving
7 customers by charging a prepayment penalty on residential mortgage loans in violation of the 8 terms of the loan agreements. Plaintiff alleges that Homecomings charged him such a 9 prepayment penalty when he paid his loan under a due-on-sale clause. Plaintiff contends that 10 this must be a standard practice because Homecomings uses form loan documents, but makes 11 no allegations with regard to any specific payment of prepayment penalties by any other 12 person than himself. Because Plaintiff’s claim sounds in fraud, it must satisfy the 13 particularity standard of Rule 9(b). The lack of any allegations with regard to any transaction
14 other than Plaintiff’s is fatal to his contention that Homecomings has engaged in any 15 “customary practice” sufficient to support a claim pursuant to California’s Unfair
16 Competition Law, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, et seq. (“UCL”).

17 More important, however, is Plaintiff’s written agreement with Homecomings that 18 before he would bring any claim premised on a breach of their agreement he would first 19 provide written notice of the breach to Homecomings and provide Homecomings with an 20 opportunity to remedy that breach. Plaintiff made no effort to provide that notice or 21 otherwise avail himself of the grievance resolution procedure set forth in the parties’
22 agreement. Following those procedures is a necessary condition precedent to bringing this 23 lawsuit. Because Plaintiff has failed to give Homecomings advance notice of his belief that 24 Homecomings breached its contract with him and the opportunity to cure that purported
25 breach, as he agreed to do, Homecomings’ Motion to Dismiss should be granted.

26 STANDARD FOR MOTION TO DISMISS

27 A plaintiff must allege sufficient facts to support the allegations in the complaint and 28 state a plausible claim that rises above a speculative level in order to avoid dismissal under

1 Rule 12(b)(6). Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 127 S. Ct. 1955, 1964-65 (2007). A 2 statement of fact that “merely creates a suspicion [of] a legally cognizable right of action” is 3 not sufficient to survive a motion to dismiss. Id. Conclusory allegations and legal
 4 conclusions cannot defeat a motion to dismiss. See Sprewell v. Golden State Warriors, 266
 5 F.3d 979, 988 (9th Cir. 2001); Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754-55 (9th
 6 Cir. 1994); see also Spiegel v. Home Depot USA, Inc., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33480, *12-7 13 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 9, 2008) (granting motion to dismiss UCL claims).

8 ALLEGATIONS IN THE COMPLAINT

9 Plaintiff’s allegations of fact are rather limited and may be found only in paragraphs
 10 nine and ten of his Complaint. Plaintiff and Homecomings were parties to a loan transaction 11 secured by residential real property in California. (Complaint at ¶ 9.) Plaintiff alleges his 12 “loan contract” with Homecomings contained language “prohibiting the imposition of 13 prepayment penalties when the residential property loan was prepaid in full pursuant to a 14 due-on-sale clause.” (Complaint at ¶ 9.) Plaintiff further alleges that, “[o]n or about June,
 15 2007,” he informed Homecomings that he intended to sell his home. (Complaint at ¶ 10.)
 16 Homecomings then provided Plaintiff with written notice of the payoff amount, allegedly 17 under the due-on-sale clause stated in the loan agreement. (Complaint at ¶ 10.)
 18 Homecomings also charged Plaintiff a prepayment penalty in the amount of $17,194.88.
 19 (Complaint at ¶ 10.) Plaintiff paid the prepayment penalty on August 1, 2007. (Complaint at 20 ¶ 10.) Plaintiff now brings this class action seeking restitution of prepayment penalties paid
 21 by himself and putative class members, for loans where prepayment penalties were charged 22 despite “loan contract” terms prohibiting prepayment penalties for payments made under a
 23 due-on-sale clause. (Complaint at ¶ 10.)

24 Every other allegation against Homecomings is pure speculation. Plaintiff alleges no 25 facts to establish that Homecomings’ alleged conduct was part of any “systematic and 26 uniform practice” of “unfairly and deceptively” charging prepayment penalties “in violation
 27 of the loan agreement.” (Complaint at ¶ 11.) Plaintiff alleges in the most conclusory fashion 28 possible that Homecomings entered into an agreement with other unnamed Defendants “to engage in a scheme for the purpose of increasing the revenues...” (Complaint at ¶ 8.) Not one fact is alleged to support Plaintiff’s mechanical recitation of the pleading requirements to establish a basis for class relief under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23. (Complaint at ¶¶ 15-19.) Plaintiff fails to allege any facts to show that Homecomings has charged similar fees to any other customer in any other loan transaction. Even assuming the truth of the facts regarding Plaintiff’s individual loan transaction, not a single fact is alleged to establish that Plaintiff’s contract grievance is anything other than an isolated incident. Accordingly, such facts should not be accepted as true for purposes of Homecomings’ Motion.

ARGUMENT

I. PLAINTIFF’S LOAN AGREEMENT WITH HOMECOMINGS CONTAINS A CURE PROVISION THAT MUST BE EXHAUSTED PRIOR TO THE COMMENCEMENT OF ANY JUDICIAL ACTION SUCH AS THE PRESENT CASE.

Plaintiff’s claim against Homecomings is based on his allegation that Homecomings violated the terms of the parties’ written “loan agreement.” Plaintiff does not attach the loan agreement to the complaint, but he relies on its terms as the basis for his claim. Accordingly, Homecomings attaches the following agreements between the parties to its Motion, which together make up the “Loan Agreement” between the parties:

1. Adjustable Rate Note dated August 5, 2005, executed by Douglas R. Pearson and delivered to Homecomings Financial Network, Inc., in the original principal amount of $547,500.00 (the “Note”); and

2. Deed of Trust dated August 5, 2005, executed by Douglas R. Pearson and delivered to Homecomings Financial Network, Inc., covering certain real property commonly known as 2677 Villas Way, San Diego, California 92108 (the “Deed of Trust”).

The Declaration of Judy Faber, Servicing Manager of Homecomings, filed in support of and concurrently with Homecomings’ Motion to Dismiss, authenticates true and correct copies of the Note and Deed of Trust, which are attached to said Declaration as Exhibits A and B, respectively. The Note and Deed of Trust are collectively referred to herein as the “Loan Agreement.” The Loan Agreement is properly considered part of the pleadings because Plaintiff necessarily relies on it to support his claim that Homecomings’ violated the Loan Agreement by charging a prepayment penalty. Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 690 (9th Cir. 2001). Moreover, where the terms of a written agreement that is part of the pleadings conflict with the allegations in a complaint, the written agreement controls. Banis Restaurant Design, Inc. v. Serrano, 134 Cal. App. 4th 1035, 1045 (2005).

The Loan Agreement contains a grievance resolution procedure that requires Plaintiff to provide written notice to Homecomings and an opportunity to cure any alleged breach of any part of the Loan Agreement. (Ex. 1-B at § 20.) That provision provides, in relevant part:

Neither Borrower nor Lender may commence, join, or be joined to any judicial action (as either an individual litigant or the member of a class) that arises from the other party's actions pursuant to this Security Instrument or that alleges that the other party has breached any provision of, or any duty owed by reason of, this Security Instrument, until such Borrower or Lender has notified the other party (with such notice given in compliance with the requirements of Section 15) of such alleged breach and afforded the other party hereto a reasonable period after the giving of such notice to take corrective action.

(Ex. 1-B at § 20.) All such notices must be in writing. (Ex. 1-B at § 15.) Accordingly, Plaintiff expressly agreed to provide Homecomings with written notice and a reasonable opportunity to take corrective action before commencing "any judicial action" based on his allegation that Homecomings improperly charged a prepayment fee under the Loan Agreement.

In California, "where the terms of [a] contract are plain and unambiguous, courts have a duty to enforce the contract as agreed upon by the parties." Baskin-Robbins, Inc. v. Taj California, Inc., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19946, *61-62 (C.D. Cal. 2003); BTA, Inc. v. Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co., 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9330, *7 (N.D. Cal. 1999). In addition, the California Civil Code provides that "[w]hen a contract is reduced to writing, the intention of the parties is to be ascertained from the writing alone, if possible." Cal. Civ. Code § 1639; BTA, Inc., 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9330 at *6-7.

A notice and cure provision, such as the one at issue in this case, is a valid and enforceable contract term. See Gueyffier v. Ann Summers, Ltd., 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 294, 313 (2d

1 Dist. 2007) (enforcing notice and cure provision in franchise agreement), review granted, 53
 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 802 (Cal. Jan. 17, 2007); California State Auto. Assoc. Inter-Ins. Bureau v.
 3 Pol’y Mgmt. Systems Corp., 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21823, *19-21 (N.D. Cal. 1996)
 4 (upholding notice and cure provision, but denying summary judgment due to fact issue
 5 regarding waiver).

6 In this case, the Loan Agreement contains a clear and unambiguous term requiring
 7 Plaintiff to provide notice to Homecomings of the alleged breach and time for Homecomings
 8 to take corrective action. The notice and cure provision is a prerequisite for Plaintiff to take 9 any judicial action against Homecomings for any reason relating to the alleged breach. In the 10 absence of allegations to establish that Plaintiff complied with the notice and cure provision
 11 under the Loan Agreement Plaintiff may not assert claims against Homecomings in this 12 Court or any other judicial forum. Accordingly, Plaintiff’s Motion should be granted.

13 II. PLAINTIFF FAILS TO PLEAD HIS CLAIM WITH SUFFICIENT 14 PARTICULARITY TO SATISFY RULE 9(B).

15 Motions to dismiss should be granted where a complaint lacks sufficient facts to raise 16 the plaintiff’s right to relief above a speculative level. See Twombly, 127 S. Ct. at 1964-65.
 17 In Stewart v. Life Insurance Company of North America, the court stated that “[a]n 18 unsupported opinion as to an alleged customary practice is insufficient to establish that 19 [defendant] engaged in any act or practice that could be interpreted as an unfair business
 20 practice under § 17200.” 388 F. Supp. 2d 1138, 1144 (E.D. Cal. 2005).

21 This is particularly true where, as here, a claim sounds in fraud. In such cases, the 22 heightened pleading standard of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b) applies. Fed. R. Civ. P.
 23 9(b); see Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA, 317 F.3d 1097, 1103, 1105 (9th Cir. 2003)
 24 (disregarding UCL claims that sounded in fraud but failed to meet the heightened pleading
 25 requirements of Rule 9(b)); Stickrath v. Globalstar, Inc., 527 F. Supp. 2d 992, 997 (N.D. Cal.
 26 2007).

27 Claims sound in fraud when they “allege a unified course of fraudulent conduct and 28 rely entirely on that course of conduct as the basis of a claim.” Vess, 317 F.3d at 1103-04.

1 Here, Plaintiff's class action claim sounds in fraud because it relies on the allegation that
 2 Homecomings' alleged practices "constitute 'fraudulent' or 'deceptive' business practices
 3 because Defendants' practices are likely to deceive a reasonable customer." (Complaint at ¶
 4 23.) Therefore, Rule 9(b) applies. Id. at 1105.

5 Under Rule 9(b), allegations sounding in fraud must "state the time, place, and 6 specific content of the false representations as well as the identities of the parties to the 7 misrepresentations" in order to survive dismissal. Stickrath, 527 F. Supp. 2d at 998 (quoting
 8 Alan Neuman Prods., Inc. v. Albright, 862 F.2d 1388, 1392-93 (9th Cir. 1988)). However,
 9 the Complaint in this case fails to provide the necessary details to satisfy Rule 9(b). Plaintiff
 10 provides no facts whatsoever, much less particular allegations, to establish that "Each of the 11 above named Defendants agreed among themselves to engage in a scheme for the purposes
 12 of increasing revenues received by each of the Defendants." (Complaint at ¶ 8.) In addition,
 13 the Complaint fails to plead particular facts regarding the date, time and content of Plaintiff's 14 alleged notification that he intended to transfer ownership of his home to another party, or the 15 content of Homecomings' alleged demand for payment under the due-on-sale clause.
 16 (Complaint at ¶ 10.) This information is necessary to determine whether Plaintiff's
 17 payment to Homecomings complied with the terms of the due-on-sale clause in the Note,
 18 which provides a specific procedure for notice, demand and payment in order to get relief
 19 from a prepayment penalty. (Ex. 1-A at § 11.) Moreover, not a single fact is alleged to 20 establish that Homecomings is engaged in any "systematic and uniform practice" of 21 deceiving its customers as alleged throughout the Complaint. Indeed, the Complaint lacks
 22 any facts to establish anything other than Plaintiff may have a grievance with Homecomings
 23 that must first be submitted in writing with a reasonable opportunity for Homecomings to 24 take corrective action. (Ex. 1-B at § 20.) The Complaint should be dismissed as a result of 25 Plaintiff's failure to provide sufficient particular facts to satisfy Rule 9(b). Accordingly, 26 Plaintiff's Complaint should be dismissed under Rule 9(b).

27 ///

28 ///

CONCLUSION

For all of the foregoing reasons, Defendant Homecomings Financial LLC's Motion to Dismiss under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) should be granted.

Dated: May 15, 2008

Respectfully Submitted,

LOCKE LORD BISSELL & LIDDELL LLP

By: s/Cory A. Baskin

John M. Hochhausler

Cory A. Baskin

Attorneys For Defendant HOMECOMINGS
FINANCIAL, LLC f/k/a HOMECOMINGS
FINANCIAL NETWORK, INC.

Locke Lord Bissell & Liddell LLP
300 South Grand Avenue, Eighth Floor
Los Angeles, CA, 90071-3119